

We know you understand fine lines. So do we.

0.02mm to be exact.

(So fine they make other lines look fat.)

There's a fine line between madness and genius.

Introducing Canon's new range of Large Format Printers, iPF650, iPF655, iPF750, iPF755 – sharper lines, clearer text, smoother curves.

We know your printing needs demand optimal quality and accuracy, with this in mind we have developed our range to feature a super-high density print-head which ejects tiny 4pl droplets of ink that produce an incredible 2400 x 1200 dpi output with fine lines within +/-0.10% accuracy and as fine as 0.02mm!

But the benefits don't end there – the precision and clarity of the images is further enhanced by Canon's unique 5-colour Reactive Ink System which minimises bleeding between text and coloured backgrounds, making small fonts and fine lines crisp and easy to read, even on uncoated and technical papers.

Not only that, but an added benefit to Canon's innovative ink technology is that our Reactive Inks also improve scratch and marker resistance, making prints more durable than when printed with conventional dye inks.

There's a fine line between cutting costs and being cost effective.
(And we'll give you a free set of ink to prove it)*.

When choosing a printer the cost of consumables is always an important factor. However, cutting costs by choosing a cheaper option is not necessarily the most cost effective solution. Canon's LFPs print finer lines, so not only do you have more accuracy in your outputs but you use less ink. Our range also has "hot swap" ink tanks – these enable the ink to be transported from the subtank to the print head, this means the ink is utilised to the very last drop, which means fewer replacements, less wastage – and savings on the printing cost per page.
